Executive Summary:

EMOSENSE is an innovative emergent in the field of Emotions Detection and Recognition Market by Technology through Artificial Intelligence ready to face the challenges of the EDR market and deliver an edge to the businesses. We strive to unleash the power of emotion recognition based AI, to develop an effective and friendly system based on sentiment analysis to provide richer insight into the human world of interaction and to help various organisations understand the need to comprehend emotional intelligence so they eventually have a better understanding of the nature of their audiences. We are a software company that builds artificial intelligence that understands human emotions, cognitive states, activities and the objects people use, by analysing facial and vocal expressions. The software helps businesses understand how their customers and consumers feel when they interact, when they can't say so themselves, so the businesses can act on that to improve their customers experiences.
